Highway Patrolman Earl Fordham is shown looking over the wrecked car of Clifford Stinson early Friday morning on Brantley Road about five miles from town. The car left the road on the curve near Ham School and traveled about 145 yards before stopping in a clump of trees. Stinson was thrown out of the car and killed while a companion, William G. Martin was pinned in the wreckage. Martin finally freed himself and went for help.

The body of Clifford Stinson was found lodged between these two trees Friday after his can left the road near Ham School House. Notice the bark that was taken off the tree by the impact of the man.

The poorhouse is always the last house on "Easy Street", and we are headed that way as fast as we can travel. In this report and my report next week, I plan to talk about our greatest national extravagance -FOREIGN AID. During the past 12 years, our country has given $55 billion in aid to other nations. And during the past generation, the United States has given to foreign nations in grants, aids, subsidies, loans, gifts and repudiated loans more than $120 illions. And today we are

Even though the people in these foreign lands already have spent this stupendous amount of money, let us remember that the taxpayers of this nation still owe this debt which must be paid by generations yet unborn. When the Marshall Plan was started, it was a five-year pro gram designed to put the wartorn nations back on their feet. At the end of that time their average rate of national production had been increased to 138 percent of their high est pre-war record. That, me, meant that we had done our job - and more. Then is when our aid should have stopped. But, what began as temporary emergency measure has turned into a permanent part of our annual national budget. And President Eistenhower, just the other day, said we should set up a ten-year program. It's foolhardy and ridi-
